Simple ways to help your dog stay safe, comfortable and able to cope.

1. The whole picture

Music, applause, children, livestock, classic cars, food stalls and unfamiliar dogs can all add up. Think about the whole sensory picture, not just one trigger.

2. Read your dog

- Relaxed eyes
- Soft ears
- Loose body
- Checking in

A dog who is coping can usually move loosely, check in, eat, drink and settle. Watch for scanning, freezing, pulling to leave, barking, tucked tail, lip licking or seeking cover.

3. Give them space

Use secure equipment, such as a well-fitting Y-shaped harness, collar and lead. Create plenty of space from others.

4. Food is everywhere

Dropped food can be risky. Scan the ground, especially near stalls and seating, and make sure your leave cue is well practised before the day.

5. Heat and humidity

Humidity matters as well as temperature. Plan for water, shade and proper breaks. Watch for persistent panting, slowing down, seeking shade or difficulty settling or breathing.

6. The human end of the lead

Busy shows can mean crowds, beer tents and well-meaning strangers. Keep one sober adult responsible for the dog, and feel free to say, 'My dog needs some space, thank you.'

GOOD SIGNS

- Loose body
- Able to eat
- Checks in with you
- Can settle
- Recover after a sudden noise or encounter

THINK AGAIN IF...

- They fear people or dogs
- They are noise sensitive
- They love scavenging
- They are unwell, very young or older
- Crowds usually overwhelm them
